

Judge Upholds Firing of Barthuli; Broad Impact of Ruling Is Seen

By FRANK LAPIERRE
Superior Court Judge Robert E. Carey's decision to uphold the firing of Jefferson Elementary School District Associate Supt. for Business Roger Barthuli could affect every elected board in the state, one school board trustee said Friday.

Judge Carey's five-page decision was handed down Thursday three months after Barthuli's trial in which the ousted school administrator sought to be reinstated to his $26,750 per year job.

Friday, trustee David Parker, one of the three trustees voted to fire Barthuli and School Supt. Frank

L. Greenwood, said he considered Judge Carey's decision "more than just a decision... 'This decision is more than just a decision of the individual merit of a particular case,'" Parker said. "It should give encouragement to all elected officials to hold their people accountable and responsible."

Carry, in his ruling, noted that Barthuli's conduct was "found to be inconsistent with the orderly operation of the public schools and created an unstable relationship between a top level administrator and the governing board."

On July 11, 1973, Barthuli and Greenwood were fired from their jobs by a split 3-2 decision of the school board.

Voting for the rescinding of both administrators' contracts were trustees Beverly Forrester, Dorothy Adams and (then) newly-elected trustee David Parker.

Against the motion was trustee James Cranna and Edward Tomaseo, who has since resigned.

Barthuli joined the district in Sept. 1965.

The board had charged Barthuli and Greenwood with "breaching their contract" with the district.

They left it up to their attorney — William R. Johnson of Oakland — to decide how, when and where the contracts were breached.

Greenwood, after a one-day hearing, decided to settle the issue out of court for a reported $20,000. However, no such deal was made with Barthuli.

Attorney Johnson has thus far been paid an estimated $14,000 for both cases, it was learned.

Whether there was a hint of Judge Carey's decision is not known, however, two weeks ago the board in an unanimous 4-0 decision voted to hire John Lynch, now with the Millbrae School District, as associate for business of the JESD at a salary of $26,750.

Lynch previously worked on a temporary basis for the district shortly after Barthuli's firing.

In his ruling Judge Carey also found Barthuli used improper conduct, including "improper bidding practices and issuance of purchase orders, failure to follow the law in that regard, failure to follow and carry out directives and policies of his board and failure to adequately prepare, maintain, and assume the general management of the district's transportation, budget, contracts and leases, purchases and warehousing, maintenance of physical plants, payroll and related records, accounts payable, inventory of equipment and necessary repairs."

Board chairwoman Dorothy Adams said she was "happy that the court upheld the judgment of the board."

Another trustee voting for Barthuli's firing, Mrs. Forrester, said she was "extremely pleased with the judge's decision."

The only school board member who voted against the firings available for comment, James Cranna, said "I voted not to fire (Barthuli) but I must, of course, go along with the court's decision. That's the way it has to be."

It was not known whether Barthuli would appeal the decision.

Representing Barthuli during the trial was attorney William Brown, of the Association of California School Administrators (ACSA).

Barthuli said Friday he was not aware of the decision as yet and wanted time to study it before deciding whether to appeal.

DC to Meet With S. Bruno Mt. Developers

Top level staff meetings are expected to be held between Daly City and developers of Visitacion Rancho, the proposed new community of some 28,000 persons on San Bruno Mountain, in Daly City this week.

About 12 per cent of the total 12,500-unit community being planned by Visitacion Rancho (Foremost-McKesson, Amfac Corp.) already is within Daly City.

Specifically, an area east of the so-called Reservoir Hill near Mission Street, and the Visitacion Valley sections are in Daly City.

Some 1,050 units are planned for the Reservoir Hill area and another 470 units in the Visitacion Valley section behind the Cow Palace.

City officials say the impact by any development on the mountain will be felt in Daly City.

Storm runoff from the developed areas; perhaps sewage disposal to its North San Mateo County Sanitation plant on Lake Merced Avenue, and traffic flow will be increased, as a result of this development, officials say.

Plans now call for extension of John Daly Blvd. past Mission Street into and through the mountain development, connecting in the east with Guadalupe Canyon Parkway.

Daly City also has been trying to get the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) to change its mind and place the mountain in Daly City's sphere of influence, rather than in Brisbane.

Some officials and citizens in Brisbane, including Mayor Salvatore Guardino, already have voiced dissatisfaction with the LAFCO ruling.

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors already has set a maximum tax rate of some $4 per $100 of assessed valuation on the designated General Services area for the mountain-top. It was not known how much of this maximum figure will be required to support the community.

Daly City is expected to oversee the total community plan and not just that within its borders, a city hall spokesman said.

In effect, the city will be reviewing and commenting on the plans in the same manner as the county planners' office, it was learned.

Most Daly City councilmen have said if the city must inherit the headaches of the mountain it should have a strong say in how it is planned.

Councilmen Bernard Lycett, Victor Kyriakis and McRobert Stewart believe their city is best equipped to annex the mountain.

But they attach strings to the suggestion.

That is, if the mountain development comes into their city, they want the lucrative sales revenue-pro-

Serra Vista Parcel

School Land May be Sold

Trustees of the South San Francisco Unified School District have approved "in concept" the proposed sale of a part of the Serra Vista School site which ultimately could enrich the district financially and provide substantial improvements to the school facility.

Trustees Monday night directed the district staff to work with engineers of the Guy G. Atkinson construction firm to draw up a more specific proposal for sale of 13 acres of the 23-acre school site.

It has been estimated that the acreage is worth upwards of $260,000.

Atkinson has asked that the district consider putting the land up for sale, so that the firm can bid on the acreage.

Dean Comstock, Atkinson liaison engineer, said the firm needs the land, from which about 200,000 cubic yards of fill would be taken to complete work Atkinson is doing on the Highway 101-Highway 380 interchange in San Bruno.

For several months, Comstock has been working with the district staff in trying to find the best way for both his company and the district to benefit from the sale. However, Comstock emphasized that although his company is doing much of the planning, there is no guarantee that if the trustees decided to sell

SM County Clergy Divided on Demonism

By JOHN HORGAN
Clergymen from throughout San Mateo County are deeply divided on the issues of demonism and possession.

The spectrum of opinion ranges from outright rejection of these notions to the revelation by one minister in South San Francisco that he has come in direct contact with what he believes are three possible cases of possession.

These questions have lately come up in relation to a series of reports of possession and obsession by the devil here in the Bay Area, including at least two in Daly City.

The Rev. Donald Wertz, pastor of the Good News Chapel in South San Francisco, says that as recently as three months ago a young woman came to him suffering from many of the manifestations traditionally associated with cases of possession by a demon.

"She had body contortions," Reverend Wertz remembers. "Her back would bend terribly. She would writhe. She screamed and threw out her arms."

What did he do?

"I lay my hands upon her and rebuked the spirit." According to him, it seemed to be beneficial.

"I only saw her on three or four occasions but she seemed to have been helped," he says.

The other two cases he had occurred prior to this one. One of them happened 18 years ago.

Reverend Wertz has been the pastor at the church for 27 years.

He believes that, "We are going to see more of this in the future. There can be a merit to it. It is good that Americans are becoming aware of this."

He adds that each time he has come in contact with a potentially possessed or obsessed person, he finds that that individual has been dabbling in the occult.

"I view all this is both a possibility and a reality," he concludes.

Rabbi Sanford Rosen of Peninsula Temple Beth El in San Mateo isn't so sure.

"I just can't accept the whole concept of demons and devils," the rabbi says.

"I think human beings create their own hell and they have the potential to create their own heaven here on earth, too. Personally, I can't accept the idea of forces of evil having a power of their own. Human beings can give power to evil by giving themselves over to evil, but humans have the power to be aware that they are also children of the Most High.

"I think that when people concentrate on these things, when they focus on them, they can give them energy. The focusing helps to intensify whatever it is we are focusing on. The more people get into certain notions or frames of mind, the more they draw along in their train."

The Rev. Lesley Wilder, pastor of the Episcopal Church of St. Matthew in San Mateo, disagrees.

"I believe in an objective evil power," he says. "I think that an evil force, a malignant force, exists. But this concept is not familiar to American ears. Our

Fassler Sees 'Significant' Link With BART

San Mateo County is going to have to develop a mass transit system which will be "significant" in its relationship with the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) — preferably by choice and not by law — Mrs. Jean Fassler, chairwoman of the County Board of Supervisors said Thursday.

Although the law requires a "compatible" relationship with the BART system when a system is developed in San Mateo County, Mrs. Fassler is "not ruling out" some means of upgrading the Southern Pacific commuter service, including "working out" grade crossing problems along the route.

Mrs. Fassler said she is supporting the formation of the proposed transit district which will initially create an intra-county bus system and eventually extension of mass transit through the county.

The board chairwoman emphasized that, "I don't see a mass transit system (in the county) without a vote of the people."

Speaking at a luncheon meeting with members of the county press, Mrs. Fassler indicated that the county can "hopefully" face the "realities" and not the "uncertainties" which are plaguing BART.

Mrs. Fassler discussed many questions concerning county problems and concerns.

She stated that she has not secured enough facts to determine if she is going to change her vote as a member of the County Local Agency Formation Commission concerning withdrawal of 10 cities and special districts from the San Mateo County Harbor District.

"I haven't got the facts, and I don't know what the board (of supervisors) is going to present to LAFCO," Mrs. Fassler said.

She stated that she and Supervisor Gerald F. Day, also a member of LAFCO, leave the board's litigation sessions when there is discussion of the appeal the board is preparing to ask LAFCO to reconsider its vote of last September in approving the withdrawals.

One of the concerns of the board, Mrs. Fassler stated, is that the action of the LAFCO will prompt similar withdrawal petitions in other county-wide districts, such as the proposed transit district.

Hopefully, she said, legislation for a transit district would preclude withdrawal of individual cities or districts.

Mrs. Fassler, who served for nearly nine years on the President's Environmental Advisory Commission after being appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson, reported that she was not reappointed when her term expired last May.

"It was an interesting experience, and a lot of hard work," Mrs. Fassler stated, "but I had the feeling we were being programmed to the administration's desires."

Mrs. Fassler insisted that she immediately calls off personnel and litigation meetings of the board when some member tries to insert the discussion of matters which the county has to assume that responsibility," she stated.

Mrs. Fassler also emphasized that the county is going to "be sure" that county ordinance requirements are met in development of San Bruno Mountain and for expansion of San Francisco International Airport.

society has become so humanistic and secular this all sounds strange to us.

"My main thought, though, is that all this ought to be treated with great care and supervision. I hate to see something like this exploited. This is one of the unfortunate outcomes of publicity."

"One of the reasons why this seems so sensational is that the concept of sin has been watered down in our society. So has the concept of satan."

The Rev. John Lucas, pastor of St. Macrina Byzantine Catholic Church in San Mateo has a similar view.

"These cases do come up once in a while," he notes. "Some of them are very real. But the church doesn't want to say much about them. It doesn't want everyone going around becoming upset by them."

Has he ever come up against a possession or obsession case?

"No, I never have. And I don't want to either."

"This isn't something new at all," agrees The Rev. Leth Davidson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in San Mateo.

I know of a case in Van Nuys where a little girl seemed to be possessed. She had tremendous strength. She exhibited other manifestations, too.

Reverend Davidson says an increase in interest in satanism is almost bound to bring about an increase in such incidents, either real or imagined.

Albert Keller of Burlingame, a local elder in the Jehovah's Witness faith here on the Peninsula, believes that demons exist.

"They will exist until Armageddon when they will be driven out," he allows.

"I'm not surprised at all this at all. I am surprised that religions claim they can expel the demons. No one has that power since the Apostles themselves. The truth in the Bible will set a person free. Praying over a person won't do it."

He says he has seen some cases of possible possession.

"I saw them in San Jose but I haven't seen ones with really severe manifestations."

He says that, "Most religions don't believe that demons exist. But they don't believe in the Bible either. So I guess that isn't illogical."

The Rev. Tesshin Kakimoto, pastor of the San Mato Buddhist Church, says he doesn't like to see such cases receiving such great play from the media.

"They ought to be played down," he says.

"In our religion, we don't believe in the devil. We believe in the law of cause and effect. If there was a case of possession, there would have to be a cause for it. The person would have had to have some kind of influence that has led him to believe that he is possessed."

"The is all part of one's karma, one's whole being."

Your present depends on your past.

He points out that his religion does not have a ritual of exorcism.

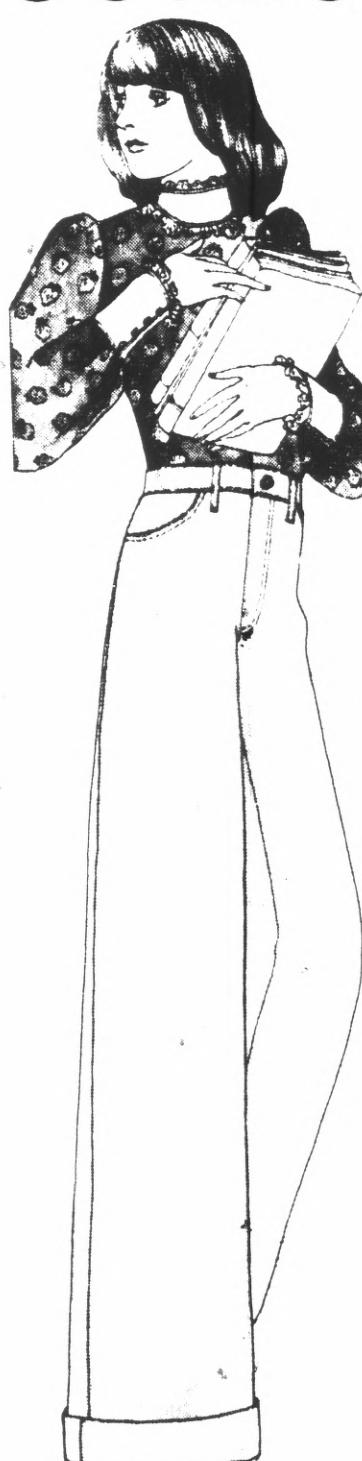

Asking for anonymity, he states: "Good Lord, you don't really believe all that, do you?"

School Land Sale Proposed school on small residential streets.

Comstock has estimated that school improvements could cost Atkinson as much as $250,000.

It was explained that if Atkinson acquired the acreage, work in the area would begin after school recessed for the summer and would be completed before students returned to school in September. Comstock said after the fill was removed and the school improvements were made, Atkinson would immediately attempt to sell the land.

Trustee Thomas Henkle asked what would happen to the proposed project if Atkinson was not awarded the sale, and Comstock replied, "With the proper writing of the contract for sale any responsible bidder would have to agree to do the work (school improvements)."

Atkinson's intent to sell the land after improvements spurred some concern among residents in the Serra Vista attendance area, notably John Maleck, who asked that the land not be sold to developers.

"If this land is to be ultimately sold, then I think the city (South San Francisco) should get the first crack at it, so it can be used for parks or open space," said Maleck.

"We are being closed in so fast in this area by homes and apartments that any bit of open space I would like to see maintained."

Board Chairman Leo Pedreddi said he doubted that the city would be interested in the property, since "It's just a hill. The city couldn't use it for anything," Pedreddi said. "All it is now is a fire hazard."

Comstock estimated that once grading is completed and school improvements are made, about half of the 13 acres would be useable for developers.

School District Engineer Stan Haney said the area is now zoned for single family dwellings.

In other action Monday night trustees:

—Granted the South San Francisco High School Stage Band $432 to compete in the Reno Jazz Festival, March 15-17, and $432 to the El Camino High School Show Troupe for a goodwill tour to Chico, Red Bluff, Marysville, Willits and Point Arena, March 25-31.

—Authorized two business education teachers at South San Francisco High School to attend a conference in Honolulu, April 8-12.

Minshew Joins Sheriff's Race

"My name is Harland Minshew and I am taking this occasion to announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of San Mateo County."

Minshew, 48, 12 years a councilman in Pacifica and a policeman for 29 years, said Thursday he would challenge Sheriff John R. McDonald in the upcoming election.

I think my chances are good," he said. "If I don't win it won't be because we didn't try."

Minshew admitted his campaign will not only be "low-key," but also low-cost.

"They ought to be played down," he says.

"In our religion, we don't believe in the devil. We believe in the law of cause and effect. If there was a case of possession, there would have to be a cause for it. The person would have had to have some kind of influence that has led him to believe that he is possessed."

3 Injured in Pre-Dawn Blaze in Daly City

Three persons were treated for injuries, including burns and smoke inhalation, during a pre-dawn fire which heavily damaged a Daly City home Thursday.

Five members of the Gwen Fuchs family and a houseguest managed to escape with minor injuries during the fire at 384 Miriam St. at 3:13 a.m.

The houseguest, Jim Moss, 20, received burns of both hands and badly singed hair as he fled the burning house.

Greg and Suzie Fuchs, asleep in a rear bedroom, were forced to break a window and flee the fire.

They suffered smoke inhalation and were taken to Mary's Help Hospital for treatment, fire officials said.

The cause of the fire is not known, fire investigators said.

They said the blaze apparently started in the living room where Moss was asleep on a sofa.

Moss awoke to find the room full of smoke and fire and fled through the front door, firemen said.

Damage to the home was estimated at $8,000. No estimate of damage to contents was available.

Flames also damaged siding at the 390 Miriam St., according to firemen.

Link Chain May End Daly City Feud

The years-long feud between some residents of the Hillside Blvd. area of Daly City and the owner of a car wash at the corner of Hillside and East Market St. may be finally ended.

Friday, car wash owner Mario Caprini agreed to erect chains across entrances to the facility to prevent cars from entering the property after closing hours.

Neighbors had complained that cars and motorcycles come onto the property long after closing hours and park, many with their car radios blaring loudly.

Frank Loretta, Leon Harry and Vicki Schavez, all living next to the car wash, had asked the city attorney to press the matter for the past two years.

All were agreeable to conditions set forth in Superior Court Judge Walter Capaccioli's Court Friday in which Caprini, appearing with his attorney, Robert Hunter, was instructed to immediately put up the chains to entrances on his Hillside-Market Street car wash and chains in front of the stalls at his other wash on Sullivan Ave.

The car wash had been a bone of contention between school district officials, residents of the area and property owners for more than six years — since it was first built.

School officials charged it was a hazard to children attending the Colma K-6 school. And property owners living around the car wash contended it brought land values down.

When it was first proposed, City Atty. Albert Polonsky had to make a determination whether the car wash was a vending machine or a car wash.

On March 22, the case will again be reviewed to confirm whether the chains have been put up. Polonsky said.

Park Expansion Study Begins

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Design work on expansion of the Lincoln Park Clubhouse and park is now under way by the City of Daly City. When completed, the park will more than double in size.

Located in the eastern sector of Daly City, Lincoln Park is one of the city's oldest and, until the expansion program got under way, one of the smallest recreational facilities in Daly City.

For the past five years the city has tried to shake loose federal and county funds to upgrade the small park, used extensively by area residents.

With the aid of some $90,000 in Federal funds, $50,000 in county funds and an additional $60,000 in city money, a total of $200,000 has been earmarked for land acquisition and development of the park, according to City Mgr. David Rowe.

First phase of the expansion project involved the purchase of five homes in the southeast corner of the park site, behind the clubhouse on Acton and Winchester Streets.

Four of the five homes have already been bought by the city for a total of $116,500. Only one home remains to be purchased.

Rowe said agreement on buying this home, owned by Carol Broussard, is near.

Under federal regulations, Rowe explained, an owner-tenant of a home purchased by the city may qualify for an additional funding of up to $15,000 for the purchase of a replacement home comparable to the home sold and adequate for the family of the seller.

Rowe anticipates it will be between six and eight months before the houses are removed to expand the park.

This will give the occupants time to seek suitable housing elsewhere, he said.

These funds are in addition to moving charges, Rowe explained.

The city is expected to put the homes up for bid to persons who will remove the structures to other locations.

Meanwhile, persons remaining in the homes will entire two-block area pay the city rent at an agreed upon rate, Rowe said. Rowe, Brunswick and Acton.

Partisan Politics And a Fair Trial

Impeachment — can there be a fair trial before the Senate, and fair charging procedures before the House of Representatives?

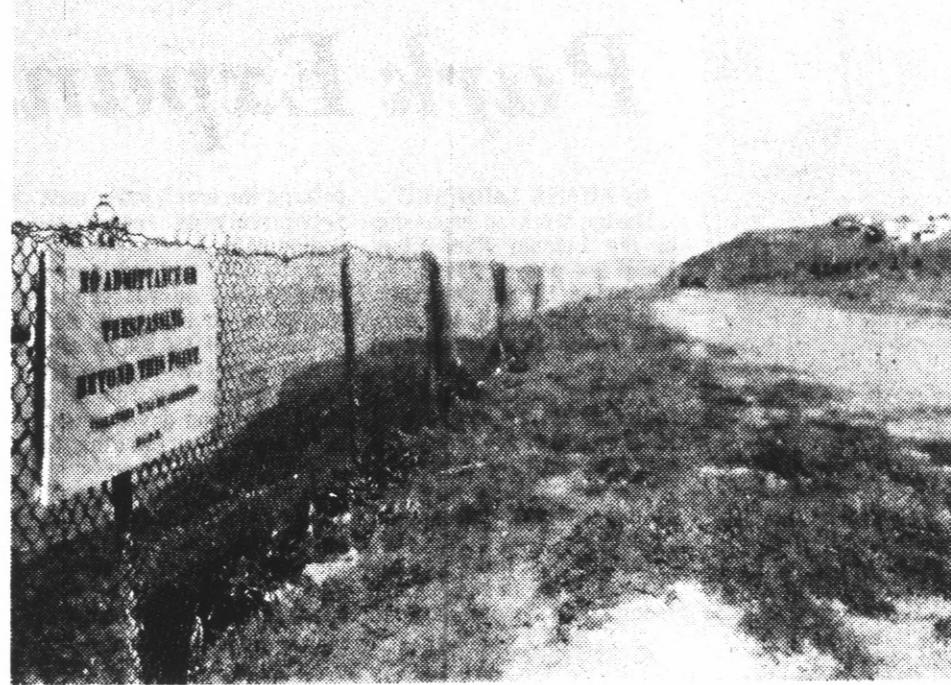

Under our constitutional system there is no court administered assurance of due process. Impeachment is, in many ways, a constitutional anomaly. Accusation, trial and judgment of removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor are all provided for without resort to the courts on the trial level or for judicial review. Although, in cases involving a president, it is required that the chief justice preside over trial in the Senate, this singularly important proceeding is initiated entirely within, and heard before the national convention is almost exclusively composed of Republicans.

Congress, of course, is the most political body. Members of the House of Representatives must be elected every two years, and senators must run every six years. The body was designed to be responsive to the people, and political longevity is directly dependent upon a member's continuing electability.

How well does the structure of Congress meet the requirements of deliberation and studious judgment? On the face of things, not well.

Partisan politics has already proven an influence on judgment. Democrats, particularly liberal Democrats, find impeachment attractive. The active opposi-

LAUNCHING SITE — From these cliffs at the end of Northridge Drive in Daly City, some 400 feet above Pacific Ocean, an increasing number of hang-glider enthusiasts gather to practice the relatively new sport. A San Jose youth was killed near this point two weeks ago when he struck high-voltage wires while soaring in gusty winds. City has clamped down on use of area and has repaired fence along clifftop and erected "no admittance" signs to prevent persons from using area.

Suspension of Co-ed Explained

It wasn't her ideology — it was her defiance.

Thanos Panagoulias, principal of Terra Nova High School, stressed the point in a statement in the case of Zoe Joyner, who had been suspended for five days after her demonstration against beauty contests.

The demonstration — described by Miss Joyner as "radical improvisation theater," took place during a visit to the school by Miss California, Susan K. Shipley and Pacifica Mayor Aubrey Lumley, chairman of the Miss Pacifica Pageant.

She interrupted Lumley's talk to demand that he reveal his measurements. Panagoulias said the girl was ordered to leave but instead she then lay down on the floor, saying she would like to be carried out.

Miss Joyner later explained that she felt strongly that beauty contests were demeaning to women.

Panagoulias said Miss Joyner was entitled to express her opinions, but not to interrupt the presentation of others' opinions.

"Defiance" is an offense spelled out in the state Education Code, he said.

He also denied Zoe's statement that he said she needed a whipping.

Serramonte Band Seeks Funds for Hawaii Trip

The Serramonte High School Concert Band is launching a fund-raising drive in an effort to participate in the Hawaiian Festival of Music June 19-25.

Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District Jan. 21 "sanctioned" the trip, which will cost some $26,000, according to Janet Gaynor, the Daly City school's Music Department chairman.

A number of fund-raising events are planned, but ice cream seems likely to be the center of the campaign.

Miss Gaynor told trustees that the largest single potential event — $305 a person is needed — probably will come through the sale of $1 certificates for Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor. She said Farrell's has offered 25,000 such certificates, with the band receiving 50 cents each for their efforts.

That's a potential of $12,500, Miss Gaynor said.

"Believe it or not, there is a man named Farrell," she said, "and he likes bands."

Working with a parents' committee, the concert band members already have looked into other sources of funds, including the usual pancake breakfasts, fashion shows, car washes and carnival concessions.

The district office is looking into insurance coverage.

Miss Gaynor said the band was accepted for the festival, which is sponsored by the Honolulu Symphony Association and the City and County of Honolulu, after auditioning via tape.

"The band will play a concert and receive ratings and constructive criticisms from three nationally known adjudicators and will play two additional service concerts for hospitals," Miss Gaynor said.

"We also plan to visit culturally and historically important museums, spend half a day touring Honolulu, including the Polynesian Cultural Center, as well as touring the outer islands and become acquainted with visiting Pearl Harbor. We dents from many parts of the will have the opportunity to United States," she added.

'Guys' Join Girls in Westmoor's Food Class

For the past four years, guys have worked alongside girls in the coed foods classes at Westmoor High School baking cakes, scrambling eggs and learning the basic cooking techniques.

The trend towards coed classes keeps growing, and coed foods is perhaps the most popular as there are six classes being offered this year at Westmoor.

Margaret Rossander, the head of the home economics department, highly favored the idea of coed foods classes when it was brought up, but also, student interest helped bring the course into being. Miss Rossander thoroughly enjoys the class and says, "It is a skills class and all students must be willing; it is fun, but also a learning experience."

In the beginning, tests are given in such subjects as measurements, cooking methods, kitchen safety, table setting, nutrition, and a placement test for knowing what is where in an individual kitchen.

There is one advanced and five beginning Coed Foods classes. It is open to girls, freshman to senior, but limited to boys who are junior and seniors.

Every week there is a cooking lab and a written assignment. When there is a lab, before the meal is prepared, students draw their menus, write up market orders, and at the end of the meal everyone cleans up.

The Home Economic Department holds an annual Christmas party which is open to the whole community.

As far as prices affect foods classes, each department in the school has a separate budget.

Everyone is graded equally and Miss Rossander says, "In general, the boys' averages are higher than the girls."

After all, who makes the best chefs?

Health for People

By Keevin Davis and Carmen Olivares

Carmen Olivares and Keevin R. Davis are Marketing Assistants at Our Lady of Guadalupe Health Center in Daly City.

Did you know that?

Venereal Disease now constitutes a public health emergency of the first order. V.D. strikes someone in the United States every 15 seconds . . . 4 victims every minute.

Venereal disease is the name usually given to those diseases caused by organisms which are transmitted from persons who already have the disease to other persons by close sexual contact. The organisms causing these diseases can't live very long when exposed to light and air away from warm moist areas of the human body. Thus, there is little danger of becoming infected with Syphilis or Gonorrhea from public toilets, door knobs, drinking cups or eating utensils.

There is more than one type of Venereal Disease, but the two most common kinds are Syphilis and Gonorrhea. Gonorrhea is the leading reported communicable disease in this country and Syphilis is third. It can and does attack young and old, male and female, and people of all social classes. However, it most frequently attacks teenagers and young adults.

Venereal Disease can be treated. With prompt and proper diagnosis the medical profession has available many drugs to treat Gonorrhea and Syphilis. Only a qualified physician can detect and treat Venereal Disease. Anyone the least bit suspicious of having V.D. should immediately contact their physician and/or Public Health Authorities. Remember the key to treatment is the word "prompt".

THE MOST COMMON types of cancer that strike women are: cancer of the lung, cancer of the breast, cancer of the sex organs (particularly the womb), cancer of the bowels and rectum.

Are you aware of the seven warning signals of cancer? They are change in bowel or bladder habits, a sore that doesn't heal, unusual bleeding or discharge, thickening or lump in the breast or elsewhere, indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, obvious change in wart or mole, and nagging cough or hoarseness.

The occurrence of any of the above signals does not mean that you have cancer, but it's a good idea to get a check up once a year including a pap smear. Women should give themselves a self breast exam at least once a month.

It found early most types of cancer can be treated and cured. Remember your health is in your hands.

Now we have an effective vaccine that can stop Rubella. Commonly known as German Measles, Rubella is a common childhood illness. Other than a slight rash, most children don't get any sicker than when they have a cold.

THE REAL DANGER of Rubella is to the baby growing in the mother's womb. If a woman catches Rubella shortly after she becomes pregnant, the disease is passed to her unborn baby. The baby may die. If the baby is born alive, the baby may be deaf, blind, mentally retarded, have heart disease or brain damage.

When pregnant women catch the disease, it is usually from children. In 1964 there was an outbreak of Rubella throughout the country. Over 10 million people got Rubella. Enough women, who were pregnant, got Rubella to cause 20,000 children to be born with defects and many more were born dead.

All children from 1-12 should get vaccinated against Rubella as soon as possible. Even if you think your children have had Rubella before, they should have the vaccination.

The vaccine is available from your doctor and/or your Health Department.

Sabia Vd. que?

Al presente las enfermedades Veneras constituyen una seria emergencia de salubridad publica. En Los Estados Unidos cada 15 segundos una persona contrae V.D. y cada minuto hay cuatro nuevas victimas.

Enfermedades Veneras es el nombre comunmente dado a esas enfermedades causadas por organismos que son transmitidos por parte de personas quienes ya tienen la enfermedad a otras personas cuando ambos tienen relaciones sexuales intimas. Los organismos que causan estas enfermedades no pueden sobrevivir mucho tiempo cuando estan expuestos a la luz y el aire libre, cuando estan lejos de las partes húmedas del cuerpo humano. Siendo así, hay muy poco peligro de que un individuo se infecte de Syphilis o Gonorrhea al usar inodoros publicos, a usar vasos y cubiertos que halla usado alguien mas.

Hay muchas clases de Enfermedades Veneras pero las mas comunes son Syphilis y Gonorrhea. Gonorrhea ocupa el primer puesto en el pais entre enfermedades comunicables y Syphilis esta en tercer puesto. Esta enfermedad ataca a jóvenes y viejos, hombres y mujeres, y gentes de diferentes clases sociales. Sin embargo, ataca a mas frecuencia a los adolescentes.

Las Enfermedades Veneras pueden curarse. Si se llega a una diagnosis correcta y inmediata la profesion medica tiene a su disposicion varias drogas para el tratamiento de Gonorrhea y Syphilis. Solamente un medico competente puede reconocer y empezar tratamiento contra las enfermedades veneras. Cualquier persona que tenga la menor sospecha de estar infectado, debe de ponerse en contacto inmediatamente con su doctor o el Departamento de Salubridad Publica. Recuerde, la clave en el tratamiento de esta enfermedad es la palabra "IMMEDIATAMENTE."

LAS CLASES MAS comunes de cancer que le dan a mujeres son: cancer de los pulmones, cancer del pecho, cancer de los organos sexuales, especialmente de la matriz, y cancer del intestino.

Conoce Vd. las 7 señales de peligro del cancer: cambios en el ritmo habitual de las eliminaciones, una llaga que no cicatriza, perdida anormal de sangre flujo, dureza en el pecho u otra parte, indigestion o dificultad al tragar, cambios en una verruga o lunar, y ronquera o los persistentes.

La ocurrencia de cualquier de las señales mencionadas no quiere decir que Vd. tiene cancer, pero es buena idea someterse a un examen fisico una vez al año y al mismo tiempo recibir el Pap test. Mujeres deben darse una examinacion propia de el pecho por lo menos una vez al mes.

Si se reconoce pronto, el cancer puede ser tratado y curado. Recuerde su salud esta en sus manos.

Ahora tenemos una vacuna que puede parar la Rubella. Comunmente llamada "sarampion Aleman," la Rubella es una enfermedad infantil corriente. Despues de una erupcion naranja, la mayoria de los ninos no se enferman mas que cuando tienen catarro.

EL PELIGRO verdadero de la Rubella es al bebe que este creciendo en la matriz de su madre. Si una mujer contrae Rubella poco despues de haberse embarazado la enfermedad es transmitida a su bebe. Pueda que el nino muera. Si el nino nace vivo, puede que nazca sordo, ciego, retardado mental, con una falla en el corazon, o con varias de estas cosas juntas.

Cuando una mujer embarazada contrae este mal, la mayoria del tiempo lo contrae de un nino. En el año 1964 hubo una epidemia de Rubella en toda la nacion. Mas de 10 millones de personas contrajeron Rubella para causar que 20,000 ninos nacieran con defectos. Muchos mas nacieron muertos.

Todos los ninos entre las edades de 1 y 12 años deberian de ser vacunados lo mas pronto posible. Aunque Vd. crea que sus ninos ya han tenido Rubella todavia deberia de vacunarlo.

La vacuna esta a su disposicion por parte de su doctor o Departamento de Salubridad Publica.

What's Your Question?

There was a young girl named Mary
Who was most horribly contrary
Who said no answer can be found
To my questions profound
Yet she ne'er called the library

"What's your Question?" How many square feet of skin are there on a human body? How many bees in a hive? Can a snake bite through a leather boot? Is it improper to wash a United States flag?

Reach for the telephone: your library has the answer.

It is estimated that there are from 14 to 18 square feet of skin on the average adult human body. This makes skin the largest organ of the body. Skin is thicker on the back of a member of the body than on the front and more thick on the outer than on the inner side. There are about 3,000 sweat glands to a square inch of skin on the palms of your hands which is more than six times as many as on a square inch of skin on your back, while on your eye lids your skin is only one fiftieth of an inch thick.

About the strangest thing pertaining to skin is the way of computing the number of square inches of skin. According to George Stimpson's "Book About A Thousand Things," a special kind of very thin but strong paper that adheres closely to curved surfaces is placed over the nude body. The paper is first dried, then removed, cut into small pieces and measured.

How many bees in a hive? Authorities differ widely on the number of honeybees in a hive or colony. Yet it has been estimated that a good colony may contain as many as 50,000 bees. One of these is the queen, few hundred are drainers and the rest are workers. A honeybee weighs a little less than one three hundredths of an ounce, there being about 5,000 in a pound. Accordingly, a swarm of fifty thousand bees would weigh about ten pounds.

CAN A SNAKE bite through a leather boot? Such snakes as the bushmaster, rattlesnake and gaboon viper have long, powerful fangs and are able, under favorable circumstances, to bite through soft leather and rubber of the thickness generally used in making shoes, boots and leggings. However, no species of snake is able to bite through hard, thick leather or rubber used in heavy boots that are manufactured for wearing in areas where snakes abound. A favorite story from the Old West reports that a man was bitten in the calf of his leg by a rattlesnake. He died, of course, and so did three other men who wore the same boots in turn. It was finally discovered that one of the snake's fangs was imbedded in the leather of one of the boots.

Is it improper to wash a United States flag? No, it is not improper and no disrespect for the national emblem is shown simply by cleaning it. In fact, cleaning the flag is the proper thing to do when it becomes soiled. Likewise it is proper to mend a flag when torn unless it is in such a bad condition that it would be a discredit to the country if it were displayed.

So what's your question? Telephone the library and ask for the reference librarian or the readers service librarian. Then pose your question clearly. If it can be answered in a minute or two she will give you the answer while you are on the line. If, however, it requires some research, she will take your name and telephone number and get back to you when she has an answer.

The "Taming of the Shrew," a Shakespearean play, was viewed by Terra Nova English students and teachers Nancy Vincier and Christine Clancey recently at the San Francisco American Conservatory Theater.

Marc Singer, who played the role of Petruchio, and Fredi Olster, who played the role of Katherine, gave overwhelming performances that brought on a standing ovation.

Other members in the cast were Claire Malis, Stephen Schnetzer, Andy Backer, William Paterson, and Deborah May.

Most of the performers worked in the production to give the audience a "commedia tradition" — an attempt to make each character stand out boldly to communicate the sense of traveling players performing a show and reveling in their work.

After the performance, students were allowed to ask questions of members of the stage and cast.

It was found that the music provided was performed by the American Conservatory student musicians, and practically all of them.

NELL

Good morning, good cooks.

Tuesday we will share a variety of recipes. Starting with a delicious casserole of noodles, and next an interesting and different way to prepare a coconut pie and lastly a vegetable casserole.

NOODLES ROMANOFF

6-oz. noodles
1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup sour cream
1/4 cup sliced green onion
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup grated Natural American cheese

Cook the six ounces noodles. Drain and combine with the one cup cottage cheese, one cup sour cream, one-fourth cup sliced green onions, two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and one-half teaspoon salt. Place in buttered casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350-degrees) for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with half cup grated cheese, return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Serves 6.

This recipe was sent to me by a friend in the east. She noted it had won a prize in a paper and recommended it highly. If you are a coconut fancier you are going to love this pie. It is rich and eggy and full of coconut. An unusual feature is that it forms its own crust as it bakes.

NO-CRUST COCONUT PIE

3 eggs
1 cup milk
3/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups coconut
1/4 cup each melted butter and flour
1/4 teaspoon each baking powder and salt
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Beat the three eggs until light and fluffy. Stir in the one cup milk, three-fourths cup sugar and one and one-half cups coconut, one-fourth cup each melted butter and flour, one-fourth teaspoon each baking powder and salt and one teaspoon vanilla.

Pour into well buttered and lightly floured 9-inch pie pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 40 minutes. (Pie forms crust as it bakes.)

CARROT-CORN CASSEROLE

1 can creamed corn
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup light cream
1 Tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 medium carrots, sliced
2 eggs
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup crushed crackers

Cook the sliced carrots in salted water until almost done. Beat the two eggs, stir in the one can creamed corn, one-half cup each chopped green pepper, and onion and light cream, one-half teaspoon salt and the cooked and drained carrots. Place in a 1 1/2-quart casserole, buttered. Top with the fourth cup crushed crackers and dot with the one tablespoon butter. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes, remove cover and bake for 15 minutes longer or until set. Serves 6.

Some Problems Connected With Buying Meat in Bulk

By LORENE BEASLEY
Editor BBB Barometer

Due to recent scarcity and high price of meat, many inquiries to the Better Business Bureau concerning freezer beef indicate growing interest in buying bulk meat to afford some relief to the family budget.

The buyer is troubled by three problems: Quality or grade of meat to be purchased; quality of meat to be received after paying "hanging weight" prices; quality of different cuts of meat.

The majority of retailers of beef through the years have honestly advertised in newspapers and by direct mail and have sold their products at fair prices. Today, with beef at premium prices, freezer owners are confused by the big splashy ads of some bulk meat firms which tend to lead the gullible consumer into believing he will receive practically all USDA Choice grade steaks, plus chuck, rib and other roasts for 69 cents to 79 cents per pound. The buyer believes he will receive meat trimmed and table ready as it is found in a meat counter.

The catch on such advertising is based on "hanging weight." Cutting losses vary with the amount of boning and the closeness of the trimming.

As indicated on one chart, a 1,000 pound steer is dressed down to a 590 pound carcass. After boning and trimming, the average yield is about 465 pounds of eating meat. It should be noted that the eating meat is not all steaks or quality cuts. In the event a consumer buys a 1,000 pound steer, he can expect to receive 110 pounds of hamburger which represents a sizeable percentage of eatable meat recovered from the steer.

Department of Agriculture figures show that a half steer roughly yields 25 per cent steak cuts, 25 per cent roast cuts, and 25 per cent ground meat and stew meat. The rest is waste.

In purchasing bulk meat, keep in mind all cattle is not beef cattle and not all beef is steak. When meat is advertised at a very low price and the dealer attempts to switch respondents to much more desirable and expensive net weight meat you could be in a bait and switch situation. Report such matters to your Better Business Bureau. Buy from a reputable dealer who will back the quality of his merchandise. If you are not familiar with the firm's name, check with your BBB.

Le Pacini

On Fullbacks

When we put down Larry Csonka last week, we were discussing his personality, certainly not his ability on the football field. As someone said, he's the prototype of the ideal fullback.

Again, we don't mean to put down Csonka, but he isn't the only "perfect" fullback prototype who ever lived. That label takes in such greats as Jimmy Brown (although he never could block as well as Csonka), Ernie Nevers, Norm Standee, Bronko Nagurski, and possibly the least remembered, Marion Motley.

Motley, you may remember, is the old Cleveland Brown, and he is perhaps least remembered of the great fullbacks because of a relatively short career, because many thought his records distorted, having played during his peak in the "weak" All-America Conference, and because his place was taken by Jimmy Brown, who was such an immediate sensation that he made people forget Motley before they had a chance to savor his memory, let it simmer and take on character, a factor which is a must for any potential legend.

But make no mistake about it, Motley was as good a fullback prototype as there ever has been. Csonka, who is 6'3 1/2 and likes to weigh 240 (although coach Don Shula prefers him at 235), and is a devastating blocker, measures well with Motley, who was shorter at 6-1, but played best at 238. He was additionally one of the greatest pass blockers who ever lived. His quarterback, Otto Graham, in fact, owes much to Motley, not only because his running up the middle loosened up pass defenses, but also because Motley helped give him more time to pass than any QB of his era.

When one considers the size of defensive linemen today as compared to the '40s and '50s, Motley's size in that era takes on even more significance. While Csonka is as big as a few linemen today, few linemen were as big as Motley in those days.

MOTLEY'S SIZE and quickness off the ball — and, like Csonka — his sometimes surprising mobility in the open field, enabled him to average an amazing 5.7 yards per carry during his nine-year pro career. Sure, he was operating with possibly the finest offensive line in football at that time, but so is Csonka; and yes, he gained a lot of big yardage on draw plays, which went off easier in that era than they do against today's more sophisticated defenses. But Motley also had to run all the tough yardage up the middle.

Critics will point out that Motley gained most of his big yardage in the "weak" AAC (in 1946 he averaged 8.2 yards per carry, and in 1948 he gained 964 yards), and it's true that his average during that four year span was 6.2, as against his five-year NFL average of "just" 5.0. But it must also be remembered that Motley, who didn't start his pro career until age 26, was already 30 when the Browns entered the NFL — an old man for a human battering ram. Yet he still led the league in rushing with 810 yards (in a 12-game season) for a 5.8 average, in his first exposure to the NFL.

By 1951 he was running on battered knees, and in that and the next three years he played — excluding one year of retirement in 1954 — he carried the ball only 199 more times. Even playing old and on gimp knees, he averaged a better than average 4.5 yards per carry.

If nothing else, Motley has to rate as one of pro football's best bargains. Paul Brown first saw him as a prep star at McKinley High in Canton, Ohio, the game's official birthplace, appropriately enough. Motley matriculated to the University of Nevada, a small college which got him little national attention. During World War II he played at Great Lakes Naval Station, and was such a forgotten man that he generally wasn't included on the traveling squad. When Brown was ready to take a franchise in the AAC, one of the first things he did was sign Motley as a free agent. He got a fullback prototype for nothing.

BASEBALL NOTES:

The more Hall of Fame votes we live through, the more we become convinced that a non-pitcher can make it only on hitting, but not only on defense.

In other words, Ralph Kiner, a prodigious home run hitter (with only a 279 lifetime BA) but a mediocre fielder and base runner, is very close to being inducted, whereas Marty Marion, a 250 hitter without power but certainly one of the finest fielding shortstops in the history of the game, isn't anywhere in sight of a nomination.

We're glad Caesar Cedeno wasn't found innocent in that South American shooting incident. Hell, in that case the government probably would have owed him a month's paid vacation.

And it's fortunate he had a good year. Had he hit .220 instead of .320 in 1973, they might have hung him!

Those of you who are politically inclined might have noticed a recent softening of relations between the United States and Cuba. It really has nothing to do with politics, but with baseball. How, after all, could there be any future major league expansion without those good Cuban ball players to take up the slack? Within five years, most domestic Cuban native players will be retired. Perennially, they've been among our best. No, we really don't give a damn about Fidel. But we could use his baseball players.

DID THE Pro Bowl finally make you as disgusted as we have been for the past few seasons over soccer players determining the outcomes of games between football players?

WE HATED to see UCLA lose to Notre Dame, but on the other hand, they had no one to blame but themselves. Any team that manages a 12-point deficit in less than three minutes deserves to lose. Especially when the deficit has occurred by way of the team not scoring during that period. We don't think that even the Warriors have ever managed to blow an 11-point lead with less than three minutes remaining in the game.

And besides, UCLA should have known that the only safe lead in front of an Indiana crowd with Indiana officials and less than three minutes remaining, is 20 points. Hardly any West Coast team could win by a one or two-point decision in those environs.

BASKETBALL NOTES:

We hope that almond commercial, the one where Jerry West tells Rick Barry to be sure to catch the playoffs on TV, doesn't prove prophetic.

We don't know, but would guess that Franklin Mieuli has the highest payroll in the NBA in proportion to his gate takes.

The more we see and hear NBA games, the more we become convinced that the sport at that level, at least, needs three officials. It would be fairer to the players, the fans, and to the officials themselves, who work under a great deal of pressure.

Liquori Enters Palace Indoor Mile Scramble

Addition of American mile great Marty Liquori and Ethiopian Haile Ebbi completes one of the great indoor fields of all time for the event, which will climax the San Francisco Indoor Games at the Cow Palace in Daly City Friday night.

Already in the classic mile are South Africa's Fanie Van Zijl, unbeaten in all seven previous races in the United States; premier U.S. distance runner Steve Prefontaine of the Oregon Track Club, and American champion Len Hilton (3:55.9) from Long Beach's Pacific Coast Club.

Liquori, a Villanova grad, was top ranked in the world in the mile in both 1969 and 1971. In the latter season he was undefeated in the mile (3:54.6 best) and 1500 meters (a world-leading 3:36.0), including triumphs in the NCAA and AAU championships and in the Pan American Games — plus a spectacular televised triumph over world mile record holder Jim Ryun.

Liquori first came into prominence as a high schooler at Essex Catholic (N.J.) in 1967 — winning the San Francisco Games' prep two-mile that year. His 3:54.6 best ties him for the No. 3 spot on the all-time U.S. list with Prefontaine.

Marty Liquori

(Pre) is fresh from an American record 8:22.1 two-mile at Portland over the weekend, where Hilton won the mile.

Ebbi won the Pacific Eight championship for Oregon State last spring and at 3:57.8 is the "slowest" man in the elite field.

While injuries sidetracked Liquori's Olympic hopes (relegating him to the TV announce booth), politics kept Van Zijl out of the Olympics — despite an impressive 3:56 mile at Modesto in 1972 and an unbeaten season in the U.S.

that year (five races). His country's apartheid policy sidelined him for Munich, however.

In his first indoor race ever, at Los Angeles Jan. 19, Van Zijl beat Liquori in a tactical mile, then captured the 1000 at Portland the following week.

The 34-event program featuring women's, high school, JC, senior, and age-group competition kicks off at 5:55 p.m. Friday with the one-mile walk. Invitational mile is at 10:20.

Camino Wins a Bruiser

By JERRY LITTRELL

Post Correspondent

Before Friday night's South San Francisco-El Camino prep basketball game, Colt coach Rene Herreras was positive about one thing.

"I don't know who will win. I know there will be a few fouls called," the gray-haired mentor noted.

Criswell should be such a seer.

A grand total of 50 fouls were whistled — 26 against El Camino and 24 against S.F., as expected, played aggressive defense. Both crashed the boards hard, and free throws were available for all. But the Warriors missed nine of their first ten tries from the line, fell behind by ten and couldn't recover.

To add muscle to his lineup, Herreras started Mike Burns, a 6-foot forward. Tight defense by Burns and Steve Kennedy on the Warrior front line killed S.F. cold.

The Colts had problems in the first half when Kennedy, John Christmas and guard Jim Bisordi each got three fouls. The trio eventually fouled out (along with Rolfe Atchearn and Marty Cattaneo of South City), but excellent bench fill-in work for Camino at least delayed the exit until the final two minutes.

South City closed to within six twice in the frantic last half, but Mike Jiggetts' four free throws and layin in the last period kept Camino solidly in front.

Cabrillo Pulls A Big Upset

Cabrillo School pulled off a major upset to highlight the second week of action in the eighth grade basketball league, co-sponsored by the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department and the Laguna Salada Union School District.

The big Blue Machine kept right on rolling, as Linda Mar School demolished Sharp Park School 61-19. The Leopards were led by Tim Adams with 16 points and teammates Dave Holly and Steve Sizor who had 10 points apiece. Martin Hohe pulled down 10 rebounds to lead the Leopard defense. Ski Tips

By Don Cappa

1. Always carry lip ice in your pocket. Cold wind plays horror with lips. To avoid this protect against it.

2. Never ski beyond your ability. Ski slopes are always marked, beginner, intermediate or expert. To avoid accidents stay within your range of ability.

3. Do not ski in an unpopular area alone. In the event of an accident a buddy can administer first aid, and/or go for help.

Rams' Win 'Just Another Game'

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

The two coaches shrugged off Wednesday's first North Peninsula League basketball crucial as "just another game."

But even the novice fan will have to agree that it did indicate both teams are odds-on choices for the playoffs.

"It's a good win, sure," said Westmoor coach Tony Giannoni, whose team had just remained undefeated by outlasting Terra Nova in a grueling 63-58 win. "But we made a lot of silly, stupid errors in the last quarter. Learning from those mistakes will be just as important as the win."

Playing an aggressive zone defense which forced Terra Nova into numerous first-half turnovers, the Rams pulled away to an 11-point lead three times, and a 20-foot jumper at the buzzer by sophomore Jerry McNeil gave Westmoor a 35-22 half-time lead.

When the Rams ran they could do no wrong. Unfortunately for them, they did it for only three stretches, and the rest of the time stood around on offense.

Center Maurice Pittman's excellent rebounding, especially on the offensive boards, kept the Rams out of danger until the fourth period.

Then, behind guard Bob Downing's quick moves to the bucket, the Tigers closed the gap. Downing's two free throws with 2:10 left brought TN as close as 57-53.

Westmoor continually fired up shots instead of working the clock down in that final period, and a cold spell kept giving the ball back to Terra Nova, enabling the Tigers to mount that rally.

Westmoor continually fired up shots instead of working the clock down in that final period, and a cold spell kept giving the ball back to Terra Nova, enabling the Tigers to mount that rally.

Playing an aggressive zone defense which forced Terra Nova into numerous first-half turnovers, the Rams pulled away to an 11-point lead three times, and a 20-foot jumper at the buzzer by sophomore Jerry McNeil gave Westmoor a 35-22 half-time lead.

When the Rams ran they could do no wrong. Unfortunately for them, they did it for only three stretches, and the rest of the time stood around on offense.

Center Maurice Pittman's excellent rebounding, especially on the offensive boards, kept the Rams out of danger until the fourth period.

Then, behind guard Bob Downing's quick moves to the bucket, the Tigers closed the gap. Downing's two free throws with 2:10 left brought TN as close as 57-53.

Old Building Unearthed in Pacifica

The location of San Mateo County's first permanent building — an outpost of San Francisco's Mission Dolores on the site of Sanchez Adobe in the San Pedro Valley area of Pacifica — has been unearthed by three San Francisco State University anthropology majors.

Although there have been past attempts to locate the outpost, last week's effort by the trio of students has uncovered evidence of the rock foundations of the outpost which conforms to drawings of the structure prepared by Alan K. Brown, a research associate for the San Mateo County Historical Museum, based on records from Mission Dolores.

Using a different system of trenching than had been employed in the past, the students, Steve Dietz, Tom Jackson and David Chavez, located the foundations at a depth of between four and five feet below ground level at a location about 120 feet from the Sanchez Adobe between the building and San Pedro Creek.

"We found some exciting things which confirm we have determined the site of the mission outpost."

Starting their project Dec. 28 with a $1,500 grant from the County Parks and Recreation Department, the trio dug a total of eight trenches crossing the suspected but never confirmed, location of the mission outpost which was the food supply (corn and wheat) source for Mission Dolores.

Mission records indicate that the first units of the outpost were constructed as early as 1784 and included a chapel, a kitchen, a granary and a priest's quarters. A second granary, additional priests' quarters and a storage area were added later.

One of the finds, Dietz said, is a log lying parallel to one of the foundations. It is planned to take a boring of the log to determine if it could possibly be part of the 27-foot-high cross erected in the courtyard of the U-shaped outpost.

One of the finds, Dietz said, is a log lying parallel to one of the foundations. It is planned to take a boring of the log to determine if it could possibly be part of the 27-foot-high cross erected in the courtyard of the U-shaped outpost.

Mission records concerning the outpost terminate after 1796, and the reason may be that the outpost was abandoned following some type of epidemic. Dietz related.

The half-dozen or so yearly Indian baptisms and burials at the outpost suddenly increased in 1791 to 70 baptisms and 47 deaths.

"Something occurred," Dietz stated, "probably an epidemic of some type."

He noted that an epidemic hit Mission Dolores in 1792, wiping out one-third of the Indian population there.

The ruins of the outpost were in evidence as late as 1838, Dietz said, reporting that when Francisco Sanchez applied for a land grant for the property in that year he noted that there were "ruins on the property."

"This has a fantastic potential," Dietz said of the find.

He cited community education and environmental living programs and how the remains "can tell us about the cultural process."

The next step, Dietz said, is "planned excavation of the site."

County Parks and Recreation Director John T. Brook Jr. commented "This is going to cost some money. We're going to have to make some decisions."

Brook said that a report on conclusions as to what has been found will be prepared and recommendations submitted to the Parks and Recreation Commission and then the Board of Supervisors.

The county acquired the nearly eight-acre Sanchez Adobe site in 1946 as a county historical site. The old adobe built by Sanchez and later added to by a subsequent owner, Gen. Edward Kirkpatrick, a retired Civil War general, was reconstructed by the county in 1953.

It appears, Dietz reported, that the mission outpost was constructed on a portion of the site where Indians had been living for no one knows how long before the coming of the white man.

He also complimented the county for its cooperation and foresightedness in archaeological studies.

"San Mateo County is far ahead of other counties," Dietz stated.

Valentino Navarro Germany, Pulanco Jr., 19, whose parents live at 29 Alviso Court, in Headquarters Company, Pacifica, was promoted to 3rd Armored Division Supply Army Private First Class in port Command.

Pacifica Student Missing

A Skyline College student from Pacifica, believed to have been vacationing for the past month on the Feather River, was believed to have drowned in a fishing accident, according to the Butte County sheriff's office.

Authorities were to decide Saturday whether or not to start a search for the body of Randy Welsh, 25, who was reported missing from his cabin Friday 20 miles north of Oroville on the middle fork of the Feather.

Steve Morgan, a friend of Welsh and also reportedly from the Peninsula, told officers he had gone to visit Welsh Friday but found only his fishing pole and net 200 yards upstream from the cabin.

Welsh had been at the cabin since Christmas. The last entry in a diary found in the cabin was written Sunday and said "Going fishing," according to officers.

Television fans were quick to spot the famous four-some dining in the elegant Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery the other evening: John Miller, producer of the popular series "Streets of San Francisco," his wife, Carolyn, and the show's star, Karl Malden, with his wife... As it stands now, January 31 is the last scheduled running of Holiday Inn's "Belmont Steaks" offer. However, General Manager Joe De Dio is considering the extension of the "2 for 1 steak dinner special" through Feb. 3. In the meantime, take advantage of the coupon in today's Bright Lights and "live high on the hog" at a special price.

Schumacher Urges Voter Registration

The deadline for registering to vote in the Daly City Council Elections ends Feb. 3.

In order to make registering more accessible to Daly City residents, several members of Bill Schumacher's campaign staff recently took a course in voter registration, and have qualified as deputy registrars.

"People are so tired of politics, that many just aren't registering to vote," states Schumacher, a former Daly City policeman and presently a Daly City lawyer.

"But if we're to improve our government, both at the local and national level, we have to pay careful attention to the candidates most qualified to become our representatives, and then vote for these candidates."

Those not as yet registered to vote, can call Schumacher's campaign headquarters (755-9720) between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, or stop by his headquarters, at 375 So. Mayfair, Room 221 in the Westlake Shopping Center.

"It is time for Daly City residents to take an interest in the people who represent them," said Schumacher. "I encourage every Daly City resident to register before the Feb. 3 deadline, to vote on March 5."

Pedreddi Favors SSF Roller Rink

"I am definitely in favor of a roller-skating rink in South San Francisco," council candidate Leo Pedreddi stated this week.

"In my opinion, roller-skating is something that an entire family can enjoy together," he said.

Pedreddi has been in law enforcement for a number of years and is in favor of family activities.

"Over the past years I have noticed that children and parents seem to drift apart when the son or daughter reached a certain age. Neither the parents nor the children especially want this to happen but it does."

"I believe that family entertainment will do much to assist in this lack of communication. Roller-skating is fun and it is also a good form of exercise," he said.

Pedreddi is also in favor of a park and recreation area being developed at Oyster Point. "Orange Avenue Park is nice, but in a city the size of South San Francisco we need more areas for recreation. An attractive park-picnic grounds would benefit residents of the city," Pedreddi stated.

"I welcome my Pacifica neighbors to my home every Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m., up to election time March 5."

Lorvan lives at 267 Juanita Ave., a half mile east of Highway 1 off Reina Del Mar in the Vallemar District.

Topics to be discussed include a transportation link between Pacifica and the Daly City BART station and daylight saving time affecting school children, according to Jack Moylett, Lorvan's campaign manager.

Moylett added, "This manner of meeting the people will give Lorvan the opportunity of learning what the public expects of him as a councilman."

Lorvan, an attorney running first time for a seat on the council, is a member and former chairman of the board of the Laguna Salada School District. He is one of three candidates endorsed by the United Citizens for Pacifica.

The Riordan Guild will sponsor a smorgasbord dinner and games evening Feb. 12, at Riordan High School, 175 Phelan Ave., San Francisco, in Chaminade Hall.

No-host cocktails will begin at 6 p.m. with dinner at 7 p.m.

The $3 admission will include a smorgasbord dinner followed by games for prizes. Mrs. William Sandow, chairwoman, invites the public to attend this special Valentine function and to bring their friends.

Reservations must be made by Feb. 8. Reservation Chairwoman is Mrs. Theresa Cuff, 681-4712. All proceeds will benefit the Development Fund of Riordan High School.

It may go down in the annals of San Mateo County judicial history as the Great Hyphen law and motion trial.

Afterall, the question was "to hyphenate or not to hyphenate."

The case Friday involved Kathryn Bouly-Wilson, a candidate for the Pacifica City Council. Her first husband of 31 years, Aimel Bouly, died four years ago.

Mrs. Bouly married Wayne Wilson in 1970 and became known as Kathryn Bouly-Wilson.

But after she registered for the city council race, she was informed by City Mgr. David S. Thompson that, in essence, the city would not recognize the hyphen, thus she would be listed last on the ballot under "W" rather than second, behind an incumbent under "B."

There are nine candidates.

Attorneys for Mrs. Bouly-Wilson, Gary Orton and George Carey, protested, bringing the matter to court. They told of how she has been using the hyphen since her marriage.

John Sherman, Pacifica city attorney, argued that the woman's name was not legally changed to reflect the hyphen, but Orton contended that didn't matter.

"I can see that candidates can then file as John A-Sherman, and then John A-A-Sherman," Atty. Sherman told Superior Court Judge Lyle Edson, thus getting top play on the ballot.

Sherman also told of his concern of an attempt to declare the election improper if Mrs. Bouly-Wilson won, and had been listed on the ballot under "B."

Judge Edson ruled late Friday that the woman had, in good faith and for honest purposes, held herself out under the hyphenated name, thus she was entitled to be listed as such on the ballot.

So much for the Great Hyphen law and motion trial.

Scout Cake Auction Held

Cub Scout Pack 69's annual cake auction to raise money for the pack took place Jan. 25 at Daniel Webster School.

Ernest Aleral took over as auctioneer for the event and provided an interesting and entertaining evening for all who attended.

Nudist Beach

In an apparent change of policy, two San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies cited five men — four from San Francisco and one from Marin County — for indecent exposure at the "Nudie Beach" at the southern end of Devil's Slide Thursday afternoon.

Deputy Sheriffs Dave Allen and Larry Bringhurst reported they were patrolling Devil's Slide around 5:30 p.m. when they noticed six people standing at a point near a rest area looking down at the beach south of Gray Whale Cove.

The officers reported they checked and could see nine nude men and women lying or playing on the beach. When they went back to get their binoculars from their patrol car to identify those on the beach, the observers dispersed. They reported they could only identify five men as some had dressed or had moved to an area where they could not be seen.

When they climbed down to the beach, the only one still completely nude was Robert F. Cosgrove, 24, of San Francisco. Allen reported: He said Cosgrove and Alan Bernard, 22; Ralph E. Kline, 19, and David M. Cooperberg, 24, of San Francisco, and William K. Slater, 25, of San Anselmo, were given citations to appear in Central District Municipal Court in San Mateo on Feb. 8 at 10 a.m. on charges of indecent exposure.

The beach is bounded on three sides by steep cliffs and on the fourth by the Pacific Ocean.

THE MARQUEE

By Barbara Bladen

There wasn't a person in the audience on the opening night of Hillbarn Little Theater's powerful, intensely moving drama, "I Never Sang for My Father," who didn't relate to the anguish of Robert Anderson's poignant play. None of us are immune to the guilts and hurts that insufficient relationships with one or another of our parents cause us throughout a lifetime.

Neither success nor happiness can blot out those large or small senses of failure, at least the nagging feeling that we've not lived up to expectations imposed by others. It can be as remote as a husband's tie to his mother or a sister's lifelong struggle to shine in as bright a light as her sibling rival, but the universality of that deep wound that never seems to heal is what the playwright has etched in searing terms.

The play is strong and it needs matching emotional depth to hold the turmoil between Gene Garrison and his father, Tom Garrison, in focus. Ed Pliska and Robert Brauns, who also directed with economy and simplicity so that the words and performances are multi-dimensional, have brought to their roles the same satisfaction I fondly remember from Gene Hackman and Melynn Douglas in the film version.

It's a play for "older" audiences. Young people don't know that kind of guilt until much later in life, too often when it's too late to do anything about it but take it out on their children. But instead of this being a worn-out tale of youth taking their elders for granted and being selfish and neglectful, the twist is the other way around.

The older Garrison is an unsympathetic, obstinate domineering and boring old fool. He's been self-centered all his life, despotic and complaining. A lifetime of frustration and bitterness over his own miserable childhood (he repeats continually the story of how his father ran out on the family) has ruined his own son's relationship with him.

"I hate him and I hate hating him," the 40-year-old son cries, torn between always trying to please the old man and starting a new life for himself in California with a second marriage after his first wife has died.

But the old man won't let up his emotional blackmail, tearing at the younger man's insides with lines like, "If you move to California it will kill you mother." The mother does die during the play and even in choosing a casket and making the funeral arrangements, Garrison is constantly talking dent on the cheeks of some about himself.

Having banished his only daughter years earlier for marrying a Jew, he draws the umbilical cord tightly around the son's neck with hope that love might be possible. But the more the son does, the more the father's resentment at life's passing as the devoted wife and Dorie White as the disaffiliated daughter who by her removal from the family scene sees her brother's dilemma so clearly, are excellent.

Hillbarn's Best Production in Years

or small senses of failure, at least the nagging feeling that we've not lived up to expectations imposed by others. It can be as remote as a husband's tie to his mother or a sister's lifelong struggle to shine in as bright a light as her sibling rival, but the universality of that deep wound that never seems to heal is what the playwright has etched in searing terms.

The play is strong and it needs matching emotional depth to hold the turmoil between Gene Garrison and his father, Tom Garrison, in focus. Ed Pliska and Robert Brauns, who also directed with economy and simplicity so that the words and performances are multi-dimensional, have brought to their roles the same satisfaction I fondly remember from Gene Hackman and Melynn Douglas in the film version.

It's a play for "older" audiences. Young people don't know that kind of guilt until much later in life, too often when it's too late to do anything about it but take it out on their children. But instead of this being a worn-out tale of youth taking their elders for granted and being selfish and neglectful, the twist is the other way around.

The older Garrison is an unsympathetic, obstinate domineering and boring old fool. He's been self-centered all his life, despotic and complaining. A lifetime of frustration and bitterness over his own miserable childhood (he repeats continually the story of how his father ran out on the family) has ruined his own son's relationship with him.

"I hate him and I hate hating him," the 40-year-old son cries, torn between always trying to please the old man and starting a new life for himself in California with a second marriage after his first wife has died.

But the old man won't let up his emotional blackmail, tearing at the younger man's insides with lines like, "If you move to California it will kill you mother." The mother does die during the play and even in choosing a casket and making the funeral arrangements, Garrison is constantly talking dent on the cheeks of some of the actors at curtain call.

Having banished his only daughter years earlier for marrying a Jew, he draws the umbilical cord tightly around the son's neck with hope that love might be possible.

But the more the son does, the more the father's resentment at life's passing as the devoted wife and Dorie White as the disaffiliated daughter who by her removal from the family scene sees her brother's dilemma so clearly, are excellent.

Alcoholism: A Community Concern

By JOYE OGRODOWSKI
(Third in a Series)

There are 95 million drivers in the United States — nine million are alcoholics.

In an attempt to lower this figure, at least slightly, the South San Francisco Police Department has increased its traffic division from three to six men.

According to Ken Metcalf, a five-year veteran of the city's police department and speaker on "law enforcement" at the fourth session of "Alcoholism — A Community Concern," two laws have been set up by the State of California which more closely define alcoholism.

When arrested for suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol, "under state law, you are required to consent to one of three chemical tests: breath, urine or blood," he said. "This is called implied consent."

"If you refuse, your license is automatically suspended for six months."

Since the typical drunken driver is not the falling down drunk and is perfectly capable of carrying himself through a sobriety test, walking in a straight line, these tests are used as proof of drunkenness in court.

"They can clear just as fast as they can convict," Metcalf said. "They denote the degree of intoxication and have helped to reduce the number of drunk drivers."

He explained that the breathalyzer machine analyzes "the air that is the farthest down in the lungs; the area that does the actual exchange of oxygen; the alveoli."

"The machine operator waits 15 minutes and watches the person. He checks to make sure there is nothing on the person or in his mouth which would cover up the odor of the alcohol and possibly alter the results of the test," he continued.

"The person is instructed to exhale deeply, take a deep breath, then blow it into a bottle of alcohol water, mixed so that it contains .10 per cent alcohol," he said.

"The readings should be the same. The test is run twice to insure that the machine is working and has given an accurate measurement," Metcalf said.

For the urine test, the persons voids a sample, waits 20 minutes and voids another sample. "This test gives the same readings as the blood test," he added.

"Personally speaking, most policemen I know prefer the blood test, for two reasons: a doctor administers it; there is less fooling around."

"The breath test is given in Redwood City, so there is about a 1 1/2 hour wait," he said. "You lose .02 per cent of the alcohol in your body per hour, and would have to wait five hours before a .10 per cent count would return to zero."

Metcalf indicated, however, that by the time the breathalyzer test can be given, the alcohol in the body has diminished by about a third and there is no way to measure the degree of drunkenness at the time of arrest.

The aggravating problem with the urinalysis is of a slightly different nature in that "some people are so grossly intoxicated that they can't void a sample at all."

If the blood alcohol content in the body measures .10 per cent, the law states a person is legally under the influence of alcohol.

The number of drinks necessary to produce inebriation, according to the law, however, depends on the weight and height of a person, and the amount of food he has consumed. "It would take a 200-pound man one hour and eight ounces of 80 proof liquor to become drunk," Metcalf said, "but only four ounces during the same time for a 100-pound woman."

According to Metcalf, this percentage came about 4 1/2 years ago. Prior to that date, it was .15 per cent. The limit was lowered as a result of a serious analysis of the number and the types of accidents which were occurring," he said.

In a test of this law, six South San Francisco police officers volunteered to get drunk. It began at 9 a.m. on a Sunday morning and was wholly recorded on video tape.

"Our sizes and shapes were calculated, and measured amounts of alcohol were set up," Metcalf said. "Four types of alcohol were used: 100 proof vodka and bourbon; burgundy, 12 per cent alcohol; and beer, 3 per cent alcohol."

"We drank one ounce of alcohol mixed with one ounce of mixer at a time," he explained. "A log was kept of the time when the liquor was consumed and the amount.

"Each officer would take a turn at going out on the course and driving; straight driving, driving in figure eights, backing into a garage," Metcalf explained.

After four ounces, the officers were given a sobriety test, and changes in personal driving behavior and effects of the alcohol were noted.

"What we were looking for was a method of detecting the lower level areas of drunkenness close to .10 per cent; and the people who fall between .15 and .10," he said.

"A rookie can detect anything above .15, but it takes pretty sharp observation to detect lower amounts."

During the experiment, a man from the coroner's office was present with a breathalyzer machine. The reading for the officer drinking burgundy was .22, and for the officer drinking bourbon, .07. "Although the later scored below the presumptive limit, he was stone blind drunk," Metcalf said.

He indicated that drivers who brake for green lights and make left turns from the right lane are more responsible for accidents than people who fall into the high blood alcohol percentage area.

While both of these laws apply to drivers on public streets, for which the vehicle code was generally written, implied consent is not effective on private property.

According to Metcalf, "this means that a person does not have to take one of the three tests if he doesn't want to."

"No enforcement can be made in shopping centers. I, for one, will not enforce this because it is not covered by the vehicle code," Metcalf said.

"Prior to July, 1973, a person found drunk on private property was arrested for violation of a section of the penal code, but this law since has been replaced."

In 1973, arrests of suspected drunken drivers went up 150 per cent, according to Metcalf. In this area, last year's total was "somewhere around 200 arrests. This year it is up to the 300 mark, and the year is not over yet," he said.

"More than half of the adult drivers killed in auto accidents are found to have been drunk, and 80 per cent of them were up to the presumptive limit."

"So far this year in South San Francisco, we have had two fatalities, both involving drunken drivers."

Democrats, 55.10 per cent of the total, as compared with 103,726 Republicans, 38.27 per cent.

In the 1972 general election registration, the Democrats held a 55.21 per cent to 37.60 per cent lead over the Republicans.

The newest registration figures include American Independent Party, 654; Peace and Freedom Party, 892; miscellaneous, 18, and of the new total, 149,336 voters were registered as
